Microsoft HoloLens rental and content development service for events

2018-07-14 - Kiss Zsolt - Comments (0) - Web

At rentiT we put stress upon the investigations of the latest technologies in order to being able to recommend and apply them to your upcoming events as interesting and participant engaging activities.

Microsoft HoloLens for example is a mixture of both holographic projection and the augmented reality. It can be a good choice if an organizer wants to give the guests a taste of futuristic solutions.

The applied technology can be brought even closer to visitors if it integrates well with the event's topics. The inhouse developer team of rentiT develops tailor made applications and contents specifically for events. Our developers are highly competent experts of the contribution to a delightful event experience.

During personal consultations our dedicated project managers assists by helping you work out a comprehensive plan for the selection of ideal technical equipment and software solutions. Moreover our dedicated project managers are at your service during the follow up period as well evaluating the feedbacks and giving you vital statistical information not only for the event on hand but recommendations based on these statistics to contribute to the success of your future events also.

